Reflection

This Sunday's Gospel reading has been deliberately chosen to be read at the beginning of Ordinary time in the Church's year because it sets out a number of key features about the nature of the person of Jesus Christ which are fundamental to what we believe about him. They are cornerstones of our faith and set the context for Jesus' life and works which we will hear about in the coming Sunday Gospel readings. Biblical scholars list these key messages as follows. Jesus as the Lamb of God connects Jesus to Old Testament sacrifices, particularly the Passover lamb, signifying He is the ultimate sacrifice for the world's sin. John the Baptist testifies that he saw the Spirit descend and remain on Jesus, confirming Jesus' identity and mission and the inspiration he received from the Holy Spirit. Jesus is the Son of God: the descent of the Spirit and the voice from heaven reveal Jesus' divine nature. The call to "Behold" (that is look at, or pay attention to) Jesus is a call to recognise His true significance as the source of salvation and life. John states that Jesus "ranks before me, because he was before me," highlighting Jesus' eternal nature. In essence, then, this passage serves as an introduction to Jesus' mission, revealing Him as the divine, the true focus for faith and salvation. John says of Jesus: 'Behold the Lamb of God, who takes away the sin of the world!'. The sin Jesus is to take away is not so much about individual transgressions, but the sin of the world, the condition the Church refers to as 'original sin', that sin of Adam and Eve which destroyed man's friendship with God. The Pastoral Review says "This sin is at work not only in individual hearts but is solidified in institutions and systems in the form of 'structures of sin'. St Oscar Romero taught that the mission entrusted to the Church was to 'uproot sin from history, to uproot sin from politics, to uproot sin from the economy, to uproot sin from wherever they are'. We are called to see where sin is embedded in systems, such as the prison system, the benefits system, the asylum system, and speak out for justice..... We are urged to make our voices heard, even at the risk of appearing foolish or naïve. We are part of God's redemptive work when we challenge sin in all its manifestations."
